Q. What can librarians do to help?
Because the challenges of sex work, sex workers have been experts on using privacy technologies. Privacy is paramount to this work both for workers and clients. Since SESTA-FOSTA passed, the digital landscape has become more dangerous for sex workers using the internet to build their businesses. Since privacy is a core value of library workers, this is a great chance to serve our communities by sharing our knowledge of privacy technologies as well as learning from our communities by learning about the privacy needs of sex workers.

Some ideas to start:
- Unfiltered Internet access where it's safe to access adult sites which they need for advertising
- Physical privacy screens on computer monitors
- Phone charging stations in the library
- Bathrooms large enough for people to change clothes and use baby wipes and mirrors well lit enough to put on make-up.
- Tech classes on privacy technologies like Tor and setting up a VPN
- Basic graphic design classes for marketing
- Pay attention to SESTA-FOSTA in the courts

Q. What is Section 909?
Q. What's the difference between SESTA and FOSTA?
Q. Does sex work involve physical harm?
Q. Does SESTA-FOSTA stop sex trafficking?
Q. What does SESTA-FOSTA mean?
Q. What is the importance of privacy?
Q. What's the goal of the Library Freedom Project?

Sex Work, Free Speech, and Censorship: What Librarians need to know about SESTA-FOSTA